

chemical unit processes

Treatment methods in which the removal or conversion of constituents is brought about through the addition of chemicals or by other chemical reactions; includes precipitation, adsorption and disinfection.