

force main

Part of a collection system consisting of the piping that conveys sewage under pressure from a lift station to either a treatment system or a location where gravity flow can be used for conveyance.