

limit of disturbance

Line drawn on a plan that differentiates between the construction, clearing and traffic area required for the completion of an installation and the area that is to be left as found; the area is delineated on the site using a silt fence or haybales that prevent the transportation of any fines outside the construction area because of surface runoff.