

disc filter

Device consisting of concentrically grooved discs stacked one upon the other and used for removal of particles larger than a specific size; typically used in drip distribution systems.