

profile leveling

Method of finding the elevations of a series of points at measured, horizontal distances along a line or path; process used in the development of a topographic map.