

two-float configuration

a liquid level sensing arrangement in a simplex pumping system using two single differential float switches: one for pump operation (both activation and deactivation) and a second for high water alarm activation.