

radial pump

Pump in which the impeller is a turbulent mixer that causes tank liquid to flow perpendicular to the impeller's axis of rotation; types of radial flow impellers include disk-style flat blade turbines and curved blade turbines; used in applications where high shear rates are needed, such as in dispersion processes.