

switching valve

valve used to manually or automatically direct flow from one final treatment and dispersal component to another.