

redoximorphic feature

Soil property that results from the reduction and oxidation of iron and manganese compounds in the soil after saturation with water and subsequent desaturation; see also redox concentration and redox depletion.